"The ram head works against a fixed toothed face, and if there were nothing more, stones put into the hopper would be simply crushed between the two—much as in Blake's machine. But here the similarity ends. It has been found that what we may best term a chewing action materially facilitates the breakage of the stones, and this chewing action is obtained by mounting the ram-head and its thrust-har or handle on an eccentric dees to the head. The motion attained by the use of this ecentric produces the precise effect required very efficiently. All the arrangements are very simple and machanical and the machine appears to have nothing about it to get out of order. We were much pleased

ARTHUE G. J. PINDER,

Private Secretary.

Secretary of the 20th day of May, 1872.

The Committee have considered the Report of the Profincial Secretary, dated 22nd May, 1872, on the "Vivil Officers Securities Act, 1872."

This Act deals with three classes of Government employs in this Province:

let. Persons appointed prior to the passing of the Act to any Civil Officer, or employment, or Commission in any Public Department of the Government;

2nd. Persons appointed prior to the passing of the Act to any Office or employment of public trust;

2nd. Persons appointed prior to the passing of the Act to any Office or employment of public trust;

3rd. Persons appointed prior to the pussing of the Act to Offices wherein they inight to concerned in the collection, receipt, disburgement, or expenditure of any public money for or under tovernment;

Other Sections of the Act extend the provisions as to past appointments to appointments accurity from the Officers, the same of whose offices are under-written, it will not be name of whose offices are under-written, it will not be name of whose offices are under-written, it will not be necessary to distinguish between those who received these who entered the Service subsequently.

Many Servants of the Government are never officially concerned in the collection, receipt, disburgement, or expenditure of money,—ex. ge. ordinary Constables,—and yet in consequence of holding office of public trust, it is apprehended they may be required to give security for the due performance of the trust reposed in them. In the ojdnion of the Committee, in the case of the Officers last monitoned, it is inexpedient to require security.

THE GARRICK'S HEAD,

Bastion Street.

The arrival of the steamship Prince
Alfred on Thursday afternoon with a with reference to the police force of this case of smallpox on board, has given city, and put it out of the power of Mr rise to no small degree of excitement throughout the city, and the subsequent conduct of the officers of the ship, the Mayor and the medical officer toward the Mayor, and the medical officer toward the in the exercise of his civic or magisterial passengers, is spoken of in enything but duties. complimentary terms by all parties conorned. Arriving, as the steamer did at a late hour in the day, and no one estimating sickness of a serious character on beard, the announcement that a personner was down with the small—pox not only took every one by surprise, but found the au horities quite unprepared to deal with the subject as promptly as the nature of the case required. But after making due allowance ired. But after making due allowan e for the nervous anxiety of citizens who had friends on board and the natural impatience of the passengers at being kept in confinement and exposed to the contagion, there can be no question that the whole affair has been seriously mismanaged. To whom the blame belongs, it is not for us to say. If our correspondent, "Scrutator," is to be relied on, the and the medical gentleman acting under the Mayor's instructions has been such se to merit all the censure that writer has bestowed upon them. One side of the story, however, only holds good until the other is told, and we are therefore disposed to withhold any expression nion in reference to this matter, so far as the parties referred to are concerned, until after the other side has had an opportunity of being heard. But there are facts connected with this case that admit of no denial, and that appear to be really inexcusable. That some seventy passengers, besides the ship's crew, should have been placed in quarantine and kept for twenty-four boars in confinement on board without any attempt to separate the well from the sick, thereby jeopardizing the lives of passen gers and crew, demands an explanation from those whose duty it was to see that a proper provision was made for the safe ty and comfort of all the passengers on board. In two hours after the steamer let go her anchor outside the harbor and reported a case of small-pox on board. the sick person should have been removed to a place of safety and received medical attendance, which at all events would have lessened the risk of the contagion being communicated to the other passengers. Had the Mayor consulted with the other members of the Board of Health, and not assumed the entire responsibility himself, much of the trouble and inconvenience and expense which have been incurred might have been obviated. We do not doubt that his Worship's intentions were good, and that what he did he supposed was for the best; but it is quite evident from the way things great degree cutstripped his judgment:
It is also very questionable whether his Worship has not exceeded the limits of anaged that his zeal in a his authority, both as regards the expense he has incurred and the appointment of officers to compel an observance of the quarantine regulations he has established beyond the city boundaries. The By-Law constituting the Municipal Council a Board of Health nowhere empowers the Board to exercise any jurisdiction whatever beyond the limits of the city and the port of Victoria; and hence it is a question open to considerable Horse, Carriage 10 and doubt whether he has not exceeded the power the By-Law gives him in exerising any jurisdiction whatever over the seengers of the Prince Alfred after they were landed upon Macaulay's Point. Section 3 of the "Health Ordinance, 1869," constitutes the Corporation of the City of Victoria a local Board of Health within the limits and jurisdiction" of the city, and also empowers the Governor, by writing under his hand, to appoint such and so many persons as he may think fit to form a Local Board for any other town, district or place," etc., which goes to establish the correctness of the riew we take that neither the Mayor, nor any person appointed by him, has any legal right whatever to exercise his fanctions as a health officer beyond the corporate limits of the city. If anyone has a right to exercise furiediction there in the absence of a duly appointed Local Board of Health for the district, it is the Stipendiary Magistrate. But strange to celf in this matter, nor would he, when requested to do so by the Mayor, permit the police officers to give any assistance id the enforcement of the provisions of the Health Ordinance. Now, we may be mistaken as to the course Mr. Pemberton should have pursued in such an emerency, where the public health and the ives of the citizens were in a measure involved, but it strikes us somewhat for-cibly that if he had complied with the Mayor's request, and stood less upon his official diguity, he would at once have carned a larger measure of public respect and proved himself much more worthy of the position be occupies. It seems to as position Mr. Pemberton does, instead of waiting to be asked, and refusing when asked, would at once have communicated with the Mayor and tendered the services of the police, if his Worship deemed their assistance requisite, upon ascertaining that a ship had arrived with a large num passengers on board, that some of them had the small pox, and that the vessel and passengers were about to be placed in quarantine. Had the Stipendiary Magistrate taken that course, and the Mayor been favored with the services of the Inspector of Police and one or two of the men, much of the trouble and in-diary Magistrate's conduct with that of the gentlemanly Commander of H. M. S. Scott. The moment that gentlemen was asked for assistance he gave it. Not only did be lend tents for the use of the
